Los Angeles is a city of blissful contradictions. The second most populous city in the United States, it is a metropolis intrinsically entwined with the gorgeous offerings of Southern Californian nature, in which packed neighborhoods give way to flower-studded hills and bustling streets feature the all-too iconic vistas of the city's iconic golden beaches. No wonder a Los Angeles penthouse is such a coveted piece of international realty.

The homeland of the ever-glittering Hollywood, city-dwellers are just as likely to go on a green juice-clad hike as they are to spend three hours in a darkened cinema. The world's dreamers mingle with the globe's cynics as seamlessly as the colors of the Los Angeles sunset. For those that know it, nothing quite compares.

A business and technological epicenter in its own right – not to mention the thriving music and fashion scene – and, of course, La La Land itself, there's never a bad time to buy property in the City of Angels. Enter One LA, the most expensive penthouse in Los Angeles.

Sprawling across the top two floors of the Four Seasons Private Residences LA, One LA comes in at nearly 13,000 sq ft of indoor space and boasts 6,000 sq ft of space on the outdoor roof deck, from which the panoramic views of one of the world's most iconic cities is almost unrivaled.

And, being in Los Angeles, the wraparound roof deck features a private lap pool and two further pools. Outdoor dining facilities and lounging spaces, in which the design is trademark Los Angeles chic minimalism, offer owners the opportunity to host guests in one of the most glamorous private venues in the whole city.

These glorious vistas continue inside, with dramatic floor-to-ceiling glass ushering in the golden sunlight Southern California is so internationally revered for. Inside differs from the outside offerings in the fact that the two floors are totally customizable to suit the needs and desires of the owners, with the number of bedrooms and bathrooms to be tailored upon request.

While somewhat unorthodox, this feature of One LA allows this Los Angeles penthouse the flexibility to be designed around the owner's lifestyle. Whether it be a dreamlike space for a growing family or one of the most stylish bachelor pads on the West Coast, this Four Seasons private residence is a piece of property that understands the unique and ever-growing priorities of our 21st-century lives.
